Pieces of our Puzzle

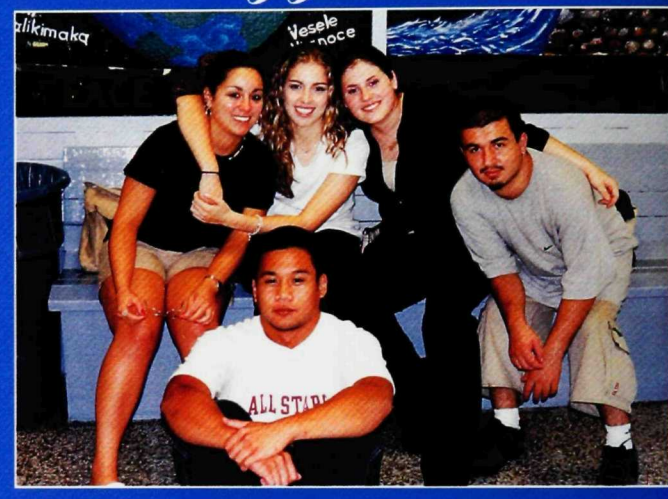
It's been thirteen years since the class of 2004 walked into kindergarten, clutching cool plastic lunchboxes with Barbie or Power Ranger decals and carrying brand new backpacks. We've changed since then, both losing and gaining pieces of the puzzles that are our lives. It's difficult to stand back and put all the pieces of ourselves in order. Where do past friends go, and will there be room for new ones? Family has been our foundation, our corner pieces for so long. Now, we're heading off to college without them. Our lives are made of pieces of our days in East Brook and West Brook, everything from our first terrifying day as fifth graders to our eighth grade pool day. Now, Paramus High School has become part of us - the Ripple Roof, the oddly numbered hallways, the trek from the "senior" parking lot. Each memory is another piece of us.



So far, we have been living the border of our puzzle, each day defining and redefining ourselves as people. Now we stand at a crossroad, and no matter what we choose our next piece to be, it will alter who we become. But it will not change our past. Part of us will always be the episodes of Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles or Nickelodeon cartoons we watched, and part of us will always be sitting in the Commons or sneaking our of class to buy bagels from the Bagel Bar. All these have become part of our puzzles.

We are an energetic, intelligent, unique class and Paramus High School will long remember us. To the Class of 2004, good luck and may all your pieces fall into place.
